A Touchstone Energy® Cooperative

NEWS IN BRIEF...

Barrow retires; Thomas promoted to director of Member & Public Relations

Henry Barrow, director of Clay Electric's Member and Public Relations Department, retired this month after 37 years of service to the cooperative.

Derick Thomas, a 15 year veteran of the co-op, succeeds Barrow as director of the department. Thomas previously managed the co-op's Gainesville and Lake City districts.

Barrow began his career as safety director in 1977. He was promoted to director of safety and job training and then to director of personnel. In 1982 he was named manager of the Orange Park District. In 1988 Barrow returned to the co-op's headquarters as director of the District Operations Department. In 1993, he became director of Member and Public Relations, a position he held until his retirement this month.

"Henry is a true professional who served Clay with dedication and commitment," said General Manager/CEO Ricky Davis.

"Henry is a great resource for information about Clay Electric. His wisdom, knowledge and advice are unparalleled."

The Member and Public Relations Department consists of three divisions: Energy Services, Member Billing and Communications.

The General Manager's Report

Ricky Davis

Members of Clay Electric enjoy benefits that customers of other utilities don't receive

There are a number of important characteristics of electric cooperatives that set them apart from other types of utilities. Ask our members what they like about Clay Electric, and things like excellent service, competitive rates and reliable power are often mentioned.

Many of our members tell us that they really like the fact that we're a not-for-profit utility and have refunded Capital Credits to our members for 39 consecutive years. Members tell us they look forward to their Capital Credits being posted on their March bills as a credit, which helps lower their power bill for that month. Entitled members who have moved away from our service area receive a refund check. At some utilities, any money left over at the end of the year goes into the city general fund, to be spent on road paving or some other project. At Clay, these funds are set aside and later refunded to the members.

One very important aspect of receiving service from Clay Electric is the fact that the members of the co-op elect their fellow members to represent them on the cooperative's board of trustees. This utility isn't governed by a city council or a board of directors that have little connection to or little regard for the folks receiving service. Our board of trustees consists of members who have been nominated by their friends and neighbors and voted upon by all members who attend our Annual Meeting in March.

Many of our board members have many years of service on our board, plus several have served on the Florida statewide association board. Others have served at the national level. Angus Hastings of Fort McCoy served as president of the electric cooperative's national association, the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association in Washington, D. C. He has served continuously on that board for more than 40 years. The many years of devoted service to Clay Electric and related organizations reflects well on Mr. Hastings and the other board members who have served for so long and have dedicated so much time to ensuring that Clay Electric is one of the best in serving its members.

Your co-op has a nine-member board of trustees. The duties of the board of trustees include meeting monthly at the central office in Keystone Heights. They review a variety of issues which have an impact on the co-op, including financial and operational reports. The board establishes overall policies and it also declares Capital Credits. Last year, they declared a $4.5 million refund.

Later this month three trustee district meetings will be held in accordance with the co-op's bylaws (see notice on page 6). The bylaws require that three trustee district meetings be held for the purpose of selecting one or two members within each district to be candidates for trustee. After the members are selected at the meetings, their names are placed on the ballot at the Annual Meeting (March 20) to be voted upon by all members who attend and register to vote.

Meetings are scheduled for Districts 2, 4 and 6. Kelley Smith of Palatka is the incumbent trustee for District 2. Carl Malphurs of Alachua is the incumbent trustee for District 4. Floyd Gnann of Middleburg was the trustee for District 6 for 42 years. Mr. Gnann passed away in August.

We've been fortunate to have a board that is dedicated to the co-op and has provided excellent leadership. Their support of management and employees has been extraordinary and this support has contributed to the success of Clay Electric.

Check membership name before attending meeting

As printed in the Notice of District Meetings on page 6, members who reside within Trustee Districts 2, 4, & 6 are eligible to register and vote at their respective trustee district meeting. If you plan to attend one of these meetings and vote, you'll want to make sure your membership includes your name. You are only eligible to vote on accounts that have your name included and have a $5 membership recorded.

If you have a concern about your registration or voting eligibility, check the name on all your electric bills. If it needs to be changed, call us and we can mail you an Affidavit and let you know if any supporting documentation is required to change the name on your accounts. The Affidavit and required supporting documentation must be completed and returned to Clay Electric prior to the district meeting.

Angus Hastings receives “Mr. ACRE” honor from NRECA

Clay Electric trustee Angus Hastings was honored with the ACRE Lifetime Achievement Award this fall.

At the Regions 2 & 3 ACRE Breakfast in Birmingham, ACRE proudly honored long-time NRECA Florida Director Angus Hastings with the inaugural ACRE Lifetime Achievement Award.

The National Rural Electric Cooperative Association (NRECA) is the national service organization dedicated to representing the national interests of cooperative electric utilities and the consumers they serve.

The Action Committee for Rural Electrification (ACRE®) is NRECA's political action committee. ACRE was formed in 1966 with the mission of making the voice of rural electric cooperative consumers heard in the U.S. Congress.

Hastings was honored for his numerous years of leadership, commitment and dedicated service to the ACRE and ACRE Co-op Owner for Political Action programs.

Hastings, who is the current trustee for District 9, has been a leader for the Rural Electric program for decades. He has served on the NRECA Board of Directors since 1974, including serving as President of NRECA from 1981-1982. Hastings took his leadership to the next level as a champion for the ACRE and ACRE Co-op Owners programs.

Because of Hastings' efforts, Florida held the number one position nationally in ACRE membership numbers for 14 years from 1986-1999.

In 2012, Clay Electric launched ACRE Co-op Owners for Political Action™. Florida currently has the second most Co-op Owner members in the nation, with more than 1,200 members. Clay Electric makes up 22 percent of Florida's ACRE Co-op Owner membership with 279 members.

Hastings is truly “Mr. ACRE,” and through his continued commitment and service, ACRE continues to be what it is today: strong & proud.

Co-op named J.D. Power 2014 Customer Champion

Clay Electric Cooperative has been recognized by J. D. Power as a 2014 Customer Champion.

“Clay Electric Cooperative is among an elite group of 50 brands across nine industries that deliver excellence by focusing on key customer touch points,” J. D. Power President Finbarr J. O'Neill said in a recent letter to Ricky Davis, Clay Electric's general manager/CEO.

“Please extend my congratulations to your entire organization,” O'Neill said. “The J. D. Power 2014 Customer Champions represent the highest-performing companies.”

“Now in its third year, the Customer Champion recognition is based on the voices of the most important critics – your customers,” O'Neill's letter stated. “J. D. Power's in-depth expertise in understanding what drives customer satisfaction and how it links to company performance across a broad range of industries is the foundation for this analysis. J. D. Power analyzed customer opinions, perceptions and feedback from its 2013 U.S. syndicated research across 600 brands.”

O'Neill also informed Davis that J. D. Power's Customer Champions will be featured in FOR-TUNE Magazine's upcoming March 17, 2014 issue.

“We're most appreciative of this surprise recognition by the prestigious J. D. Power organization,” Davis said. “J. D. Power's independent analysis of our efforts to provide our members with excellent service and competitively priced electricity reaffirms for us that our members appreciate our service and rates.”

Last summer, Clay Electric was listed as the third-best utility for customer satisfaction on a list of 30 mid-sized utilities in the South Region. Only two Georgia co-ops scored better than Clay in the area of customer satisfaction.

Seminole's Palatka plant turns 30 this year

From Seminole Electric Cooperative

When you think of birth-days, wedding days, and graduations, there is one thing these occasions all have in common: anniversaries.

Anniversaries can be celebrated with friends, family, even coworkers. Seminole Electric Cooperative (Seminole), Clay Electric's wholesale power provider, celebrated one of its own anniversaries at the start of the New Year.

This month marked the 30th year that Seminole's coal-fired power plant, the Seminole Generating Station (SGS), has been producing electricity for its members, including Clay Electric.

The decision for Seminole to build a coal-fired power plant was a result of the 1978 Power Plant and Industrial Fuel Use Act, banning the use of natural gas for power generation. Approval from Seminole's Board of Trustees, made up of 27-Member trustees, including three Clay Electric Board members, kick started Seminole's goal to provide Members power through self-owned generating facilities at a wholesale rate.

After several years of planning and construction, the first of two coal units at SGS became commercially available in January 1984. The second unit came online later that same year.

Consisting of two 650-megawatt coal-fired generating units, SGS is located on a 2,000-acre site in Palatka, about 60 miles south of Jacksonville. To supply the coal needed to operate SGS at full capacity, Seminole operates seven, 100 car trains that deliver coal from mines located more than 800 miles away.

Maintained by teams of specially trained employees, SGS produces enough electricity to power approximately 850,000 homes.

The coal-based Seminole Generating Station is located in Palatka. The now 30-year-old plant produces enough electricity to power approximately 850,000 homes.

In 2003, Seminole's Board of Trustees made a strategic decision and a crucial investment that is paying off considerably today - agreeing to invest millions of dollars in upgrading and retrofitting the two coal-based generating units at SGS with state-of-the-art environmental control equipment. In total, SGS has more than $530 million invested in control equipment, reducing emissions and protecting the environment.

Today, not only is SGS one of the cleanest coal-fired power plants in the U.S., it is also one of the most reliable plants in the country.

Seminole, in partnership with Clay Electric, has worked diligently to meet our ongoing energy needs and to exceed in complying with federal regulations.

For 30 years, the Seminole Generating Station has been a cornerstone for Seminole, its co-op members, and its energy portfolio. Thanks to the foresight of Seminole's Board of Trustees in 1984, our members will continue to receive affordable and reliable electricity from a generation facility we are proud to own.

Diversity important for generation fuels

Seminole believes it makes good business sense to have a diversified generation portfolio.

In addition to coal-based generation at SGS, Seminole also generates electricity from natural gas, and now boasts Florida's largest renewable portfolio. The diversity in Seminole's generation mix reduces exposure to changing market conditions and helps keep rates competitive.

Coal, which was once a mandated fossil fuel for power generation, is now being restricted and overly regulated. As the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) gears up to release strict federal regulations for existing power plants, including coal-fired facilities like SGS, cooperatives all over the U.S. and their Members are urging the EPA to keep an "All-of-the-above" energy approach. Visit Action.Coop for more information.
